WAITING WORD ABOUT ARREST OF AMERICAN

U. S. Seeks Explanation of Apprehension by Nazis Of Embassy Employe.

CHARGE COURTESY BREACH

Recent Incident Adds to List Of Trouble-Provoking Events Between Two Nations.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — The United States today awaited an explanation from the German government of the arrest of an American clerk in the embassy at Berlin—the latest in a growing list of trouble-provoking incidents accompanying a steady deterioration in German-American relations.

Secretary Hull ordered representations made to the German foreign office after disclosure that Stewart Herman, an embassy employe, had been detained "apparently without prior notification or explanation to the embassy."

Although Herman was released after several hours questioning, officials here were understood to consider his arrest a breach of the diplomatic courtesy existing between officially friendly nations.

When Herman and six other Americans—all since released—were arrested the German police admitted their action "might have some connection" with reprisals for the coast guard's seizure of two German merchant ships in United States ports after discovery of a widespread plot.

There is no doubt in informed quarters that Germany's antagonism stems primarily from American aid to Britain and encouragement of other threatened nations to resist Nazi aggression.

American seizure of German ships, detention of Nazi crews on immigration and sabotage charges and Secretary Hull's flat rejection of German protests—together with the cumulative effect of numerous preceding incidents—have further embittered Nazi feelings.

However, diplomatic circles here express doubt that Germany plans any very drastic action in the immediate future.

A diplomatic survey shows that, since the start of the war, German actions unfriendly or detrimental to American interests include:

Requested withdrawal of American diplomatic and consular officials from numerous German-occupied countries. (The German embassy here and consulates

Herbert Rules Against Public Funds For Purchases.

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Public housing authority officials have no more right to spend public funds for baseballs, checkers or tricycles to amuse tenants' children than to buy poker chips or dice for the parents' amusement, Atty. Gen. Thomas J. Herbert ruled today.

Housing project managements had requested permission to spend the money on the ground that the law permits them to spend money for streets, sewers and parks.

Herbert observed that "it is more than obvious that one may not carry away buildings, land, streets, or sewers or parks. . . ."

Probe Sabotaging of Equipment For Defense Work at Ford Plant

FBI Called In After Wrecking

Aviation Dies, Open Hearth Furnaces Smashed; 118,000 Out of Work as All Ford Factories Close.

BULLETIN

NEW YORK—(U.P.)—An agreement to open most of the nation's idle soft coal mines next week was reached among wage-hour negotiators for the Appalachian bituminous industry today.

(By International News Service)

DETROIT—The Federal Bureau of Investigation today investigated industrial sabotage at the strike bound Dearborn Ford plant which may delay production of $155,000.000 worth of defense equipment for many weeks to come.

Aviation dies for which there are no replacements were found smashed, two of the 10 open hearth furnaces wrecked and hundreds of tons of molten steel poured out onto the plant floor, company spokesmen reported after a preliminary tour last night.

In Washington to appear at an NLRB hearing I. A. Capizzi, Ford counsel, was reported to be prepared to add the charge of communistic sabotage to the file on alleged activity at the Ford plant which he carried to the hearing. It was reported also that Capizzi would go to Secretary of War Stimson with the sabotage story.

Every Ford plant in the United States was closed as the new development was announced and 118,000 persons were idle with prospects that many more would be out of work because of the possible effect on the 7,000 suppliers from whom Ford buys $11,000,000 worth of materials a week.

Company officials, making their first tour of the plant, found evidences of damage on all sides but the United Automobile Workers CIO promptly disclaimed responsibility. Earlier the union had charged that roving gangs of thugs in the plant were terrorizing maintenance men, and wrecking company materials.

Shortly after the official tour, John Bucas, in charge of the Detroit office of the FBI, made his own inspection but he had no comment on what action he contemplated.

Meanwhile R. J. Thomas, UAW

TELL OF DAY IN WRECKED PLANE

Survivors Describe Delirium of Pilot, Surgeon Most Seriously Injured.

(By United Press)

FT. PIERCE, Fla.—Some of the 16 ship-wrecked men and women who spent 15 to 20 hours waist-deep in water in an Everglades swamp, described their experiences today.

Their ship, an Eastern Air Lines passenger plane, pancaked into the swamp at 9 a. m. Thursday and it was dawn yesterday before the last of them was removed. All were injured but only the conditions of Dr. George Crile, world famous surgeon and scientist, and the pilot, Gerald O'Brien, remained serious today.

Dr. Crile's injuries in themselves were not serious, but he is 76 years old. One of his ribs was fractured, and his chest was severely bruised. At Indian River hospital, Vero Beach, it was said that he was running a high temperature. Mrs. Crile, whose chest was injured, also had fever. O'Brien was in the hospital here. His chest was crushed.

Mrs. Margaret Allen of Miami, one of the passengers, said the plane's most prominent passenger, Dr. Crile, apparently, was pinned

WPA WORKMAN GETS BEQUEST

But He Still Worries Over Lots of Things Anyhow.

CLEVELAND —(AP)— The news that he will receive one-third of a brother's $110,000 estate left George A. Hartman, a WPA night watchman, with fewer worries today.

But, he declared, he still is concerned over a prospective drove of salesmen and over the possibility he might be dropped from WPA before he actually acquires possession of his inheritance.

He will share the estate with a sister, Mrs. Lucy F. Wind, and a half-sister, Mrs. Mary Roberts, both of Cleveland. Hartman said he had not seen his brother Frank B., for more than 40 years.

BREAK ICE

Tugs Clear Way For Freighters Bound For Duluth.

CLEVELAND —(AP)— Pushing through the ice of Whitefish bay to reach iron ore mines, 12 freighters of the Cleveland-Cliffs Iron Ore Co. today were within four miles of the open waters of Lake Superior.

Two tugs were dispatched from Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., to join other ice-breaking craft in efforts to clear a way for the freighters. The vessels are bound to Marquette and Duluth to load the season's first ore and bring their cargoes to defense-busy steel mills on the lower lakes.

Meanwhile Pittsburgh Steamship company sent seven craft from winter berths toward Calcite, Mich., to take on limestone, another steel mill essential. This was one of the earliest movements by the U. S. steel subsidiary in many years.

This dramatic picture, made from a plane over San Jose, Costa Rica, shows the Italian motor liner Fella burning fiercely after being set afire soon after the U. APPROVE 18 FOR ARMY TRAINING

Physicians Examine 41 Young Men For Army Induction; No New Quotas Yet.

Clerks of Richland county selective service boards said today that 18 of 41 young men examined yesterday at the Armory qualified for induction into the army while six others received tentative approval of examining physicians and dentists.

Boards were unable to say, however, when the men will be called to the Fort Hayes induction station. The county boards have filled their quotas so far and have received no other calls for men to be inducted in April.

Boards 1 and 3 were notified today that all of the men they sent to Fort Hayes Thursday were accepted and will be sent to camps throughout the country. Board 2 was awaiting a report today on acceptances.

Todd Patton, clerk of Board 1, said he will call 30 more men for physical examination next Wednesday so the board will have a supply of eligible men adequate for any call that is likely to come during the rest of this month.

Patton also was mailing notices today to Mansfield registrants who are attending college to appear for physical examinations here as soon as school is out or earlier if possible.

Students whose order numbers have been called since last fall will become eligible for induction into the army as soon as the school term ends

ZANESVILLE — (U.P.) — Mrs. Merle Victor, 35-year-old Malta widow, was reported in fair condition in a hospital here today after having been shot and wounded yesterday by Charles Henry, 75, retired farmer who took his own life with a shotgun.

Mrs. Victor, mother of two children, was shot in the neck, but is expected to recover. Morgan county officers said investigation revealed that she and Henry had been unfriendly for some time. They revealed that they had found a bullet in Henry's arm but were unable so far to account for the wound.

The farmer died of gunshot wounds in the chest.

PLAN CONTEST

Medical Association Will Fight Convictions.

WASHINGTON —(U.P.)— Counsel for the American Medical association announced today that it would contest the verdict of a federal court jury finding it guilty of violating the anti-trust law.

The association and its affiliate, the District of Columbia Medical society were convicted late last night of restraining trade by opposing a group health cooperative. Eighteen individual defendants, among them top ranking association officers and nationally known physicians, were acquitted.

The two organizations face a maximum fine of $5,000 each. The court did not set a date for imposing a penalty.

NEW MEETING ON AT HUMPHRYES

Plant Officials, Union Go Back Into Conference In Efforts To Settle 'Stoppage.'

Humphryes Manufacturing company officials and representatives of Local 756 of the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers union, bargaining agent for the plant's production workers, went into conference again at 10 a. m. today in another move to settle the dispute which has kept more than 400 workers idle since Tuesday night.

While company representatives still had no comment today on the disagreement that resulted in the "work stoppage" it was learned that the situation at the plant has shown little change since yesterday.

Pickets remained on duty today at the plant entrances, but there were no reports of disturbances.

Adam Leitenberger, president of Local 756, which called the "work holiday," could not be reached for a statement before or during today's meeting with company officials.

Leitenberger said yesterday that the union and Humphryes representatives had settled their differences over a wage increase request, but were unable to agree on the union demand for a closed shop and the company's request for a no-strike clause in their proposed contract.

Leitenberger expressed the hope yesterday that employes can "go back to work by Monday."

FANCY DUNKING

NEW YORK—(AP)—Add another modern note to streamlining of the army. The Salvation Army, which brought doughnut and doughboy together in 1917, is making doughnuts with star-shaped holes

Held Here In Auto Theft, Had $3,000 In Equipment In Car

Mansfield police yesterday afternoon arrested an army deserter who thought he was stealing only an auto but found that he also had taken more than $3,000 worth of medical equipment.

Vernon Betts, 18, of Philadelphia, absent without leave from his post at Fort Belvoir, Va., confessed, police said, to having stolen the car from Youngstown after being arrested in the city on suspicion. He told police that he had been hitch-hiking and was picked up at East Liverpool by John Falenke, New York City.

When Falenke went into a drug store in Youngstown to get cigarets, Betts said he took the car and left. Falenke is a salesman for a medical equipment company and was carrying six gastro-photo machines valued at about $500 each. The machines are used to take pictures of the inside of the stomach.

Betts was arrested at Smith and Main streets and allegedly made a written confession when brought to police headquarters

He said that he had been absent without leave for two months and that it was the second time that he had left his post. He is being held here until Youngstown authorities arrive to return him there for prosecution

Falenke arrived here last night to claim his car and equipment. He charged that a tire and wheel were missing.

Nazi and Slav Armies Girded For 1st Blow

Belgrade Makes 11th Hour Gesture For Peace But Germans Term It 'Too Late'; Adowa Falls to British African Drive.

(By International News Service)

War became an ever-closer reality for Yugoslavia today as Germany frigidly indicated that last-minute Yugoslavian peace efforts were foredoomed to failure.

Convinced that a German blitz on Yugoslovia is but a matter of moments, the United States rushed plans for the delivery of a plentiful supply of war materials not only to Yugoslavia and Greece, but also to Turkey.

As Germany claimed widespread new victories on the sea, the British said the Nazi battleships Scharnhorst and Gneisenau were "straddled with bombs" in a second RAF attack on Brest last night.

The 26,000-ton German sea raiders were clearly identified in the moonlight, the British said.

British imperial troops speeding after the retreating Italians in East Africa announced capture of the historic north Ethiopian city of Adowa. At Adowa in 1896 the Italian were badly beaten by the Ethiopians and lost 7600 troops.

* * *

In Libya, however, the Germans and Italians pressed northward beyond recaptured Bengasi, while the British sought a location where a stand could be made.

Belgrade reported that an 11th-hour note has been sent to Berlin and Rome in a final effort to avert war.

But even before receipt of the note was announced, the Germans intimated that it would be rejected. Such overtures would prove "too late," authentic quarters in Berlin said.

They indicated that nothing short of a radical change in the Belgrade regime—removal of Premier General Simovic's cabinet and Yugoslavian declaration of an alliance with Germany—could end the sweep towards conflict

In a final effort to preserve peace, the Yugoslav cabinet held a dramatic meeting that lasted from half an hour after midnight until 6:30 a. m.

Reports from Belgrade said that notes were then dispatched to Berlin and Rome, reaffirming Yugoslavia's desire to avert war. At the same time the Belgrade government rushed final prepara-

SPRING ATTACK EXPECTED NOW

London Reports Nazi Offensive About to Start Yugoslavia Most Probable Victim.

LONDON — A reliable source said today that Germany's spring offensive "obviously is about to begin." The question was where.

This personage, with the best sources of information, said Britain's army, navy and air force were mounting close guard in expectation that Adolf Hitler would strike any day now in one or more of seven directions

He gave the expected attacks in this order of their probability.

1. Yugoslavia, from Hungary, Bulgaria and Rumania to protect the German flank for a drive toward Suez.

2. Greece, through Salonika with a view to eventually closing the Mediterranean.

3. Turkey, for the same purpose.

4. A sweep through Spain to seize Gibraltar.

5. Invasion of England.

6. Invasion of Ireland.

7. Invasion of the Russian

GUARD QUITS

Ex-O. S. R. Employe, Suspended at London, Resigns Post.

Arthur A. Bishop, former Mansfield reformatory guard, resigned today as a guard at the London Prison farm where he had been under suspension since March 7. His resignation was accepted immediately by Supt. William A. Amrine.

Bishop was a witness for Robert Firestone, former Cleveland labor leader, in Firestone's trial for attempting to induce an honor camp prisoner to escape. Bishop was suspended the day after Firestone's conviction.

Bishop was in charge of the Mt. Vernon honor camp at the time Firestone was accused of inducing Harry Barrington, an inmate of the camp, to flee to Mexico so he would not be available to testify at the trial of another labor figure in Cleveland

Bishop was appointed as a guard at the Mansfield reformatory May 11, 1930, leaving here April 27, 1935.

A Bath In Jail Proves 'Girl' Was Boy All the Time

PITTSBURGH—(INS)—A bath in the Allegheny county jail today proved the undoing of Albert James Hawkins, 19, who for five years successfully masqueraded as a girl in order, he said, to get a job.

Thursday he was arrested at a Parker's Landing inn, where he was known as "Miss Dorothy McArdle," and charged with stealing $35 from a Pittsburgh rooming house last December.

"I'm glad it was discovered I'm really a boy," he said as a barber clipped his long auburn curls. "I feel better now."

At a police hearing, the youth unfolded his bizarre story:

"My parents died when I was 13," he said. "I didn't want to stay with my aunt, but I knew I couldn't get a job as a boy. So I dressed up in some of her clothes and went to Morgantown, where I got a job doing housework.

"I've been doing housework and working in restaurants ever since, and no one ever found me out.

1,500 Phones to Be Switched Over to Dial System Tonight

Approximately 1500 Mansfield telephone subscribers in the Woodland exchange will start using dial operation tomorrow morning L. R. Wittemire, manager of the Mansfield Telephone company, said today that the actual work of switching over the phones from semi-automatic to full dial will start today at 10 p. m

Wittemire said that parallel systems of semi-automatic and full dial are now in place and that a few simple changes will convert the operation

He urged subscribers not to make unnecessary calls tonight because the company plans to make the conversion at an hour when the conversation load is normally low.

This will be the largest single conversion of phones in the city according to Wittemire. Following the change in the Woodland exchange, phones in other parts of the city will be changed over periodically in groups of a hundred. He would make no estimate of the time which would be required to transfer the entire city to full dial operation.

The work of converting the system will all be done in the downtown Mansfield exchange. Telephone workers will check and recheck lines and stand by in case of the need for a switch back to semi-automatic lines.

The only change for the subscribers according to Wittemire, will be that instead of the operators once a dial tone will be heard and instead of asking for a number, the caller will dial it.

All Records Broken By Steel Industry

BROADWAY

—By Dorothy Kilgallen

Gossip In Gotham.

GENE MARKEY'S latest romance would lift the eyebrows of the New York social set. She bears one of society's most famous names. (Markey, incidentally, is scheduled to start working for the navy soon. He's a reserve officer.)

Kilgallen.

Claire Windsor of the silent films, is about to waltz down the aisle in Florida with the rich fellow who gave her all those diamond bracelets. . . .

Col. Gonzalo Gomez, the playboy, and his bride the former Monsita Gomez, are knitting tiny garments. . . . Martha Raye, who'll be accompanied by her fiance, Neil Lang, on her flight to Hollywood today, vows they'll trek to the altar on May 7 in Mexico.

The Henry Simonds (he's the publisher, she's Margaret Halsey, author of "With Malice Toward Some") have parted. She's resumed toiling for brother-in-law Richard Simon.

* * *

John Garfield's father is seriously ill. . . . Mary Steele, the deb, and Rufe Johnston, a Washington lad, have softening of the hearteries. . . . Model Beverly Barbisch, who is on her way to legal freedom from Bill Leslie, the real estate family scion, has shifted to Leo Nioark, the South American millionaire. . . .

Warners wants Garbo for "Mrs. Skeffington." If not, they'll put Bette Davis in the piece. . . . Mitzi Green's latest throb is Harold Block, the radio producer.

Sonja Henie has dropped a flock of pounds and is now down to a divine 108. . . . The Murray Lewises (he's the society photog, she was Winifred Bergen, of the Powers brood) will divorce amicably in Florida.

Letter from London: Somehow mail from abroad seems more poignant even than the most sensational headlines about the war. There is drama in a blue envelope with the head of King George on the stamps and a yellow and white band lettered "Opened by Censor" pasted across one end.

Inside, clippings and four typewritten pages from Merrill Mueller, the INS war correspondent, whom I last saw in the Cub Room, slim, smiling, dinner-jacketed, leading a girl in a white satin dress out to the dance floor. That was only a few evenings ago. Now, while bombs fall, he writes:

* * *

"The old town's not the London I left. Bombing scars are much more evident and the 'City' area is something unbelievable—unbelievable to 'us Londoners' who've seen tough ones, because it's obvious that this one got out of hand. It's not a question of air conditioning in the city—it's one open draft!

"The food situation's much more serious now, too. Britain will need excess American produce by midyear. I say then because if it's ordered then, it will get there in time to ease the plights of next winter.

"I use next winter as an established fact because the one thing that hasn't changed is the spirit of the people and the confidence in ultimate victory. They'll be the advance base, they assure you, just so long as American materials keep coming in sufficient quantities to carry on the fight.

* * *

". . . The taxis are running again more fully; the blackout is stricter but the buses can be found now and again; the subway shelter system is much (very, very) much improved, and the army, while grumbling with inactivity, is as happy as can be expected and tremendously more powerful with its new equipment. It'll be a gay spring."

* * *

Monty Woolley, nemesis of "The Man Who Came to Dinner," has been made an honorary captain in the police department. He's showing his tiny gold shield everywhere, threatening through his beard to close up his tavern keeping pals if they serve a Scotch after hours, and demanding to be called "Captain Woolley." The Barberry Room is in hysterics over him. . . .

HOLLYWOOD

—By Robbin Coons

HOLLYWOOD—Time will tell whether Ann Sheridan gets that raise for which she struck.

Now that she's back at work on "Navy Blues," it's not unlikely that the Warner boys, having at least apparently won their point, will loosen their wallets and fork over something more than the increases legally due under Annie's contract. Time will tell.

ROBBIN COONS

But the Sheridan-Warner battle has proved again that it scarcely pays to tangle with the Burbank crowd. Bette Davis put up a stiff fight that cost her plenty, and was beaten down in the courts. James Cagney won in court but lost in the long run—because his independently made pictures got such short runs he was happy enough to make peace with the old bosses. It was a profitable peace for all restoring Cagney to the "top ten" star list.

Kay Francis, of all the rebels, won the moral victory. When Kay's starring pictures flopped, the Warners put her in B's, which is equivalent with most stars to an invitation to depart in peace. Kay stuck collected her $4,000-odd a week until her contract ran out, and thus proved those pieces of paper can work both ways.

* * *

Contracts have always been odd in this picture business. When Annie walks or Olivia sulks, they're merely proving spiritual kinship with the early greats of the profession. Ben L. Heidengsfeld, a Cincinnati attorney who was among the movie pioneers, was in town not long ago with his tales of the old days, and fine, engaging tales they were.

He was with World Films, long since defunct, and the star was a pretty young woman named Clara Kimball Young. Miss Young was contracted, "an iron-clad legal document," for something like $350 a week. Miss Young's pictures made money, and Miss Young found that she was terribly unhappy one day as she was scheduled to start another.

She was so unhappy that she couldn't work until the ante was raised. This restored her good spirits instantly, but not permanently. One day she was again too unhappy to work, and the same remedy was effective. This continued until, when the bidding reached $1,250 a week, World Film decided it could afford no further interest in Miss Young's happiness.

Chatter Corner

Roda Myers thoughtfully staring at her typewriter. . . . Mrs. Nona Darling being confused by the new switchboard at the hospital.

* * *

Carpenter school teachers, Helen Widders and Helen Lorow, explaining that it's not only the girls of the Junior Red Cross at the school who have been knitting afghans but the boys as well. In fact, say the teachers, some of their champion knitters are among the huskier sex.

* * *

Barney Ford home from getting soaking wet in a Columbus downpour yesterday. . . . Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Johnson greeting friends while on a visit here from Evansville, Ind., with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. M. Dillard and Mrs. Mary Johnson. . . . Mrs. Robert W. Jones being complimented on her chic new hat by Jared Mansfield chapter, D. A. R., members.

* * *

Dorothy Bell starting to work as a new assistant in Clerk of Courts Howard Wenninger's office and Alice Dinkins getting ready to leave April 15 after several years as typist in the office.

* * *

Carl Schuchmann saying goodbye to some friends. . . . Fred Elder, jr., whistling as he walked along Mulberry street. . . . Annabelle Strong trying on a hat. . . . Richard Underwood getting to work. . . . A. L. [illegible] "dire things" if [illegible] have. . . . C. S. Mowry finally obtaining enough matches to keep his pipe going.

Friends here learning that Miss Joan Twitchell, freshman at Wooster college, is a member of the college choir which will be engaged in several religious programs next week. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Twitchell, 150 West First street.

CALLS CONVOYS FINAL STEP ON 'ROAD TO WAR'

Wheeler In Cincinnati, Says War-Makers In America Become More Brazen.

(By Associated Press)

CINCINNATI—The "one final step" to involve this nation in war, Senator Burton K. Wheeler (D-Mont.) believes, is to convince the people that convoys are "a move toward peace."

"Convoys probably will be tried out first to South America or South Africa—where they will say there is no danger. Well, if there is no danger, why convoys?" Wheeler told an America First committee rally last night, opening a series of speeches he described as intended "to offset Wall Street propaganda."

"It would seem as if our war mongers are hoping that one of our ships be sunk and American boys be drowned in order to drag us into this European war," the isolationist leader declared

"Convoying through combat areas means war. Make no mistake abou that.

"The war-makers are becoming increasingly brazen. Each step toward war becomes longer—more direct—and there is less of an effort to disguise it as peace insurance.

"Some would prefer that the American people did not realize the siginificance or likely consequences of convoying to England. Some will charge that it is—to use the president's words: 'Preaching the ungodly gospel of fear'."

"Spurred by fear," he said, congress in 15 months has authorized expenditure of nearly 40 billions.

"We do not know how much of this vast sum will be spent to safeguard our country. We only know that seven billion of it will go to Britain, and Greece and China and possibly Yugoslavia and Turkey," he said.

Urging a "turn from foreign wars to American problems," Wheeler warned that "regardless who wins the present conflict—there will be serious political, economic and social dislocations."

Forecasting inflation followed by deflation and fewer opportunities when government defense spending stops, he warned that Fascism "is not born with an individual nor does it die with one; it is a social and economic disease that overtakes a nation when its vitality and its resistance is low—when there is a lack of opportunity, equality and security."

WOMAN STABBED

Husband Sought For Quiz In Altercation at Home.

Police are seeking the estranged husband of a Mansfield woman for questioning in connection with a stabbing last night which sent her to the General hospital with a puncture of the abdomen and a cut on her left elbow.

According to police, Mrs. Ben Johnston of 30 North Adams street, summoned them last night and said that James Black, 38, of 78 Park avenue east, had cut her mother, Mrs. Leah Black, 39, with a knife at the Johnston home.

Mrs. Johnston said that Black, who had been separated from his wife for several months, then left the house and ran north on Adams street.

Mrs. Black was taken to the hospital. Hospital attendants today reported her condition was good and that she would probably be discharged late today.

REFUSE PARDON TO CANTON MAN

Board Members Contend 3rd Man's Confession Fails To Clear Prisoner.

COLUMBUS — Although a friend's confession absolved him of the slaying, the Ohio pardon and parole commission today recommended to Governor Bricker that Julius Krause, 28-year-old Canton artist, continue to serve a life term for the murder of an aged Canton grocer.

Emory Glander, the governor's secretary, said that the governor would follow the recommendation and not grant executive clemency.

Krause and another man who since has died were convicted of the holdup slaying of C. A. Bartlett on Oct. 20, 1930. Last year Krause escaped from the London prison farm and located Curtis Kuemerle, 29, who confessed that it was he and not Krause who was with the other convicted slayer the night of the hold-up. Kuemerle was convicted of manslaughter.

The commission ruled that, inasmuch as Krause admitted sharing in the loot of the hold-up, the confession only indicated that three and not two persons were implicated in the slaying.

The purported confession merely conformed to the "code of the criminal," and there were many discrepancies in the stories told by Kuemerle and Krause, the commission stated.

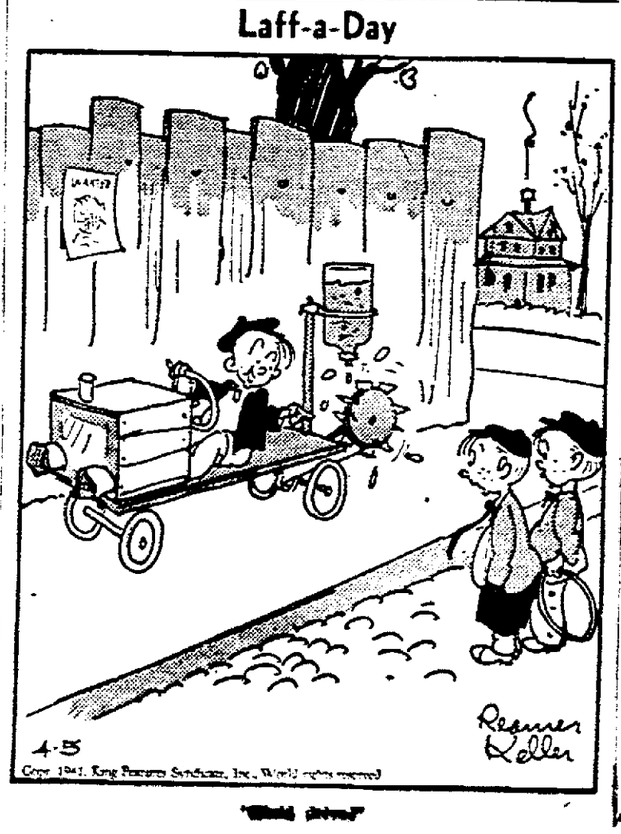
Laff-a-Day



Mansfield police are seeking what they term "a wise guy." James Henderson of 3 North Main street reported to police that the driver of an auto which damaged his car yesterday on South Franklin avenue refused to give his name, answering that he was "just one of the Jones boys." Henderson gave police the driver's license number.

A strange traveler rode through Mansfield yesterday. He was a truck driver taking a little relaxation going on a visit on his day off. His home is in Parkersburg, W. Va., and he had intended to visit Middletown in southern Ohio. But as he left Parkersburg a traveling salesman asked him if he wanted a lift. The truck driver was not averse to the idea, so he went with the salesman. Their conversation proved so interesting that the driver decided he might as well ride to Mansfield. Which he did. Later in the day he took a bus to Columbus. "I'll get to Middletown sometime today," he said. "And I'm not in a hurry and I like to ride. I guess it must be spring fever."

The April showers yesterday brought spring back to Central park, usually the first spot in downtown Mansfield to show the change of seasons. Some of the flowers at the west side of the park were two inches above the ground this morning and appeared as if they needed only a little encouragement to bloom. The grass in the park also was noticeably green today for the first time this year.

MARCH OUTPUT TOPS IN SPEED AND QUANTITY

Republic Official Says Mills In Cleveland Turned Out 140,000 Tons In Month.

(By International News Service)

CLEVELAND—The smoke-laden, flame-reddened skies over Cleveland, the Mahoning valley and the Pittsburgh area gave evidence today that the steel industry broke all records during March for the amount of steel produced and the speed with which it was turned out.

Indications pointed to records continuing to be broken under the spur of the National Defense program, according to a high official of Republic Steel corporation.

"Republic's Cleveland mills alone turned out more than 140,000 tons of steel ingots during March," this official declared in describing last month's business as phenomenal.

"Actually," he said, "our mills are operating at considerably above their rated capacity. As a matter of fact, we believe the entire steel industry is producing more steel than the country can cut up at the present time."

Most producers are confident there are no serious bottlenecks in the industry, the Republic spokesman said. Largest contributing factor to this, he added, was that the steel industry continued to spend enormous sums for improvements throughout the depression, assuring an immediate "pick-up" when the "go-ahead" signal was given.

Republic Steel alone spent nearly $85,000,000 during the depression years on improvements to plants and facilities.

Scarcity of scrap metal was becoming a serious problem, the official said, until an embargo was placed on exports to Japan, alleviating the situation tremendously.

An increased scarcity of galvanized products for general use may be expected as huge quantities of zinc are being turned over to the armament industry. In spite of this, it was said, most steel people feel that the industry is better prepared to meet the needs of National Defense than is the case in many other industries.

With a similar mission, American naval officers have been stationed for months on ships of the British fleet in the Atlantic and Mediterranean. Numbers of army observers already are in England ready for the new assignment. Others are believed to have gone to Egypt, headquarters for British operations in the Mediterrean and Balkans.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, SATURDAY, APRIL 5, 1941.

Drive carefully tomorrow—and be on the lookout for the freight cars that are called "trucks."

It is estimated that coal in the ground will last another 600 years—or even longer, if John L. Lewis continues in charge.

The young matron, who, as a co-ed a couple of years ago, wrote "Eighty-three Reasons Why I Hate Men," now has an infant daughter—and a revision of her "reasons" list might prove interesting.

Steps Toward Traffic Improvement

MOVING so slowly that the progress is scarcely noticeable, Mansfield seems to be making some progress in traffic regulation—always keeping in mind that this must be done without offending any voters.

A year or so ago, for instance, action was taken by council to restrict parking to one side of narrow streets, and this was applied on a couple of streets with good results—but nothing further was done about it because of objection from residents of the no-parking side of such streets. Now council has received a petition from Wise avenue property owners asking that parking be limited to one side of the street. All such requests should, of course, be accompanied by assurance that no votes will be lost by compliance.

Then, too, there has been a number of requests for extension of parking-limit provisions to additional streets on which curb space is being usurped by all-day parking—and the idea may gradually become more prevalent that streets are not intended for all-day and all-night parking but are designed as public thoroughfares.

Further action toward by-passing truck traffic on Route 42, so as to relieve congestion around Central park, is also encouraging, and may eventually lead to routing heavily-loaded trucks of freight car proportions over streets constructed to stand such weight, instead of quickly ruining paving on some of the city's residence streets, as is now being done.

Installation of parking meters is among the city's recent progressive steps toward better traffic conditions, but action to provide conveniently located free public parking grounds for local and visiting motorists has been delayed longer than seems necessary.

So, as is sometimes said at meetings, "The committee reports progress and asks for further time."

Hemispheric Rubber Supply

THERE is food for thought in the information that big American bombers are flying to Brazil with cargoes of rubber plants. It happens that rubber is a very important war material just now, but that is not the point.

Rubber is needed for thousands of purposes. Those plants may be the ancestors of millions of trees growing in fertile Brazilian lands that are now covered with worthless jungle growth. The climate there is supposed to be all right, and probably the soil is right, too, because the rubber tree originated in that region.

Its great development in the Dutch East Indies, from Brazilian seedlings, was more or less accidental. Now that the rubber tree is coming back home, at a time when our supply of many industrial materials obtained from the East Indies is threatened by war, there is hope that we shall have, within a generation, a secure supply in this hemisphere.

There may be many other trees and plants in distant lands, essential to our civilization, which could be profitably transplanted in South or Central America or in our continental United States. A general effort in this direction would make us far more self-contained as a nation and a hemisphere.

Finders Were Not Keepers

THREE BOYS, on their way to high school in Brooklyn, N. Y., found a roll of bills in the street. There were five $20 bills. It looked like so much money to those lads—who had among them barely enough to pay for a single chocolate soda—that it scared them. As they looked at it and counted it they thought of what they might do with it.

One of the boys, who wants to be a doctor, would like to spend his share for a microscope. Another thought he'd buy a bicycle. The other with college in mind, figured he'd put his $33.33 in a savings account.

And then they walked into the nearest police station and turned the $100 over to the officer in charge. They received commendation cards at school, and the police praised them. Their reason for turning in the money was human sympathy rather than plain honesty.

"You see," explained the boy who wanted a microscope, "that was a lot of money, a big bunch of scratch for a guy in Brooklyn to lose, see? We just figured how the guy who had saved up all that money would feel when he lost it."

It sounds something like the Golden Rule, with different words.

Old Maxim Still Holds

BACK in 1896, when the Spanish-American war was yet to come, the bitter Bryan-McKinley "free silver" campaign was in full cry and no one had heard of blitzkriegs, a country banker, George Rae, wrote a book. Some of the maxims for banking he laid down then are as sound and as timely now as on the day they were written.

For instance, he said: "Nothing more retards the progress of a bank than unpopularity. . . . The bank which has the good will and the good word of everyone is sure to make progress. But to insure this kind of popularity, it must be incapable of harsh dealing. It must not be over-grasping or too insistent, in every case, upon its exact legal right. In banking, as in other things, there is a law within the law: And that bank will do best for itself and its shareholders which at times can be generous, as well as just."

Forty-five years ago the "over-grasping" banker was common. Today he is more rare. The majority of bankers have learned the truth of what George Rae said. They have learned that they must give as well as take; they know that the welfare of the bank cannot be separated from the welfare of the community and the country. They know that service is a policy—not just a word. Banking has progressed accordingly—and the country has progressed with it.

According to Helen Hayes, the supply of drama is always below the demand—but there seems to be need for some qualifying word just before "drama."

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—When the last scene is ended, the curtain comes down. This is what happened to the Group Theater, whose career lasted exactly ten years and whose record includes an impressive list of plays, names, and writers.

In its decade of endeavor the Group's foremost actor was Franchot Tone; its star playwright was Clifford Odets, who wrote "Waiting for Letty," 'Awake and Sing," and others. Now, with its members scattered to the Hollywood winds, the Group is broken. Its offices in the Sardi building were closed yesterday in a melancholy little ritual that included disconnecting the telephone, filing away the records, turning out the lights and locking the door.

EMLYN WILLIAMS, a playwright and an Englishman who is now under arms in Britain, is nevertheless cheered by the fact that his newest drama, "The Corn is Green," is a Broadway hit, and by this fact also: his two children are guests in America for the duration of the war and are living on Robert Montgomery's farm, at Brewster, N. Y.

Differences in opinion make gamblers of us all . . . last night in Lindy's I saw $50 wagered against $200 that Italy would be out of the war in 90 days. . . . The betters were actors who, being in the money, were, as usual, having fun while it lasted.

* * *

WHEN "Amphitryon 38" was produced with the Lunts a few years ago it invoked a wide discussion because no one could figure out what the title meant. It was finally explained by Bob Sherwood, who wrote it, that this was merely the 38th version of a play based on Amphitryon.

Now a new puzzler has hit the Rialto. . . . This is Paul K. Paley's new comedy, titled "8/10 E. O. M.," and as yet, he hasn't told what it signifies. He will have to tell soon, for the play is now in rehearsal.

* * *

GEORGE S. KAUFMAN, loitering in White Sulphur Springs, is writing a new play. . . . Among certain playwrights, spas and resorts are productive fields. . . . Robert Sherwood, as an example wrote "The Petrified Forest" during his six weeks' stay in Reno.

Jim Ederle is a curious young man of 27. What is more important, he is an authentic wonder—a seventh son. For a living he fashions marionettes from empty spools, and gives plays with them. All his brothers are alive, and all live on the west coast.

* * *

WILLIAM WYLER was excited when he learned that Bette Davis had been secured for "The Little Foxes"—grim drama of an aristocratic Southern family now run to seed and living on the past. He paused briefly in New York on his way to Washington, whither he was hurrying to have a glimpse of the play as interpreted by Tallulah Bankhead. Miss Bankhead, after a resounding success in Manhatan, has been touring with "Foxes" all season. The lead is uncompromisingly bitter. Wyler, who will direct the picture for Sam Goldwyn, thinks Bette Davis will fit the Bankhead role like a glove. So do I.

THE NEW KIDDIE CAR

Judgment Used In Trainee Choice

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

SELECTIVE SERVICE'S administration is somewhat criticized for deferring a considerably larger proportion of military eligibles than draft boards did at the time of Uncle Sam's entrance into the last World war.

"Humph," snorts Maj. Joseph F. Battley of the system's Washington headquarters, in answer to this fault-finding. "Selective Service means INTELLIGENT selection. It means also the selection of those best fitted to maintain our armed forces by continued performances of necessary civilian tasks."

Major Battley's a specialist on the subject. He's occupational adviser at Selective Service headquarters, as well as chief of the assistant war secretary office's Selective Service section. He's addicted to expressions like a contemptuous "Humph!" He's blunt almost to brusqueness.

He doesn't chat long, however, without revealing an innate kindliness, sense of humor and understanding beneath his air of professional austerity. And his practical patriotism has behind it a background of approximately 25 years' service with our armed forces and more than eight years of study and planning in connection with the Selective Service system.

"The immediate and increasingly urgent requirement for national defense," continues the major, "is speedier production of military material and supplies. As this need grows and the supply of skilled workers is depleted, it can only be met by calling on the boys who can handle a monkey wrench—the boys on the farms and in the small towns.

Good Judgment Needed.

"For this reason, and because the United States may have to become the breadbasket as well as the arsenal of embattled democracy, local boards in such vicinities should be extremely careful not to make military selection of lads whose skill or aptitude will soon be sorely needed in factories or on the land. While this isn't to say that all mechanics or farm boys should be deferred, it IS to say that good judgment's called for. We mustn't cripple the country's industrially and agriculturally defensive capacity, in trying to build up its armed forces. Soldiers have to have arms, food and clothes as well as training.

"And serious consideration's being given to decentralizing production of aircraft, ordnance and military material generally. The trend isn't only to farm out the manufacture of parts and accessories to shops in our smaller cities and towns; it likewise is to build new plants in such localities—for safety from sabotage, for convenience in transportation and to provide employment for rural labor in slack seasons.

"Much already has been done in that direction in connection with aircraft production. Assembly plants are being set up in the central states, to which parts are being shipped from our large eastern, midwestern and western industrial centers.

"Having set these smaller plants a-going, we've got to have hands to man 'em."

Replying to complaint that today's local boards are freer with deferments than the last war's boards were, the major quotes Provost Marshal General Crowder, who administered that draft, to the effect that there was an alarming curtailment of production in certain fields in the spring of 1918, because boards then were too strict in interpreting the term "necessary enterprise" — that is, jobs that men had better have been left at home to attend to.

Listen World!

Keep ON Hoping!

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

SOMEDAY I'm going to make an amazing experiment—I'M GOING TO TRY TO PRACTICE WHAT I PREACH!

I realize, of course, that I won't succeed. This delightful poise and serene detachment which I advocate so enthusiastically for others will go blooey in the first five minutes. And I'll forthwith proceed to do all the things I most detest. I'll gossip. I'll put off the darning. I'll lose my temper. I'll read a detective magazine when I should be writing this column. I'll give the family cold cuts instead of the boiled dinner I've promised. And, probably, even tell a few fibs. In short, I'll make my usual mess of all those "golden hours."

And yet—I don't believe that day will be wasted. To the contrary, I think I'll be ahead on the deal just by wanting to be something better than I am, even if I don't succeed.

For honest WANTING is something in itself. It's a definite gesture up and out of the muck . . . the beginning of all progress. It took a heap of wanting—and hesitating—for Man to leave his first filthy cave home and camp out in the open. And I'll wager that Columbus chewed off all his nails before he decided to tackle that "ocean blue." Even a pollywog probably plays with the idea a long time before it finally manages to grow a pair of legs.

BEHIND EVERY STRONG AND BRAVE STEP IN HUMAN HISTORY LIE YEARS—OR AGES—OF DREAMING, YEARNING, TRYING, FUMBLING, FAILING.

And, in the end, the Fumblers may deserve quite as much credit as the triumphant fellow who puts it across. For the fellow who dreams of a better deal, yet fails to bring it to pass, does at least one thing for the human race—he keeps that dream alive. Like the tiny coral creature, he adds his obscure, infinitesimal deposit to the vast accumulation which will someday be an island.

Think of the millions who suffered, hoped and prayed, rebelled and experimented before Pasteur or Lister put their broken dreams into a test tube and found a cure for the agonies of hydrophobia and septic poisoning. Pasteur and Lister were moderns, working within living memory. Yet the impulse which swept both of them to triumph reaches back through the ages, to the forgotten millions whose prayers they finally answered.

For the strength and determination to succeed in our desires is not given to many of us. . . . nor the wit to overcome obstacles. Handicaps which are not of our making may deter us . . . circumstances may prove too much for us. But the power to hope and pray is given to all of us. And we who are so weary may carry the dream on as surely as those who are strong.

So I'm going to spend a whole day trying to practice what I preach, even if I don't succeed . . . which I know beforehand I won't. So maybe this will sound like an excuse for my own spinelessness—and maybe it will be. Far be it from me to pass up a good alibi when it comes handy! Yet, selfish as I am, I'm not thinking of my own alibis. I'm thinking of the nameless, unsung millions who live their lives, bound down by their own weakness and man's inhumanity . . . yet sometimes dream of peace, release and happiness. It was not given them to find the answer to it all.

YET I SUSPECT, WHEN THE LAST RECKONING COMES, THEY'LL FIND A GLORY WHICH THEY NEVER FOUND ON EARTH.

The Small Loan Bill.

The Ohio legislature will do well to pass the small loan bill now pending in both houses. It provides for a slight reduction of interest rates from 3 per cent to 2½ per cent a month—with the possibility that the final figure decided upon will be 2 per cent—a limit of 25 months on the life of loans and prescribes certain other rules and limitations on the operation of this type of loan business. If not ideal, it is at least a step in the right direction and if it is the utmost in the way of reduction of the legal interest rate that can be approved at this time, the measure should be enacted.

Small loan companies have enjoyed thus far a freedom of action which does not obtain in the case of other loan institutions. Some have operated fairly, others have taken every advantage of the latitude given them under existing statutes. However, their function basically is a banking one and there is no good reason for exempting them from the type of official checks and controls exercised by state government for many years over banks, building and loan companies and other financial concerns.—Columbus Dispatch.

Seizure of Sabotaged Axis Ships Follows Disclosure of Covert Act

—By ASSOCIATED PRESS

THE Italian freighter Villaperosa, anchored at Wilmington, N. C., was in the way of other shipping on the Cape Fear river. Naval officials decided to have her moved up the river.

They boarded the ship, found her a shambles, her machinery battered and completely dismantled.

Naval intelligence officers promptly set to work and learned that other Italian ships were being sabotaged. That night and next morning coast guardsmen took over 28 Italian and two German vessels from New England to the Gulf and around to the Pacific northwest. That night 39 Danish ships were added.

The action, which President Roosevelt indicated he ordered personally, was under a World war statute which permits any disabled ship to be taken over to prevent "damage or injury to any harbor or waters of the United States."

Twenty of the Italian ships were found to have been put "completely out of business." The master of one said the sabotage had been ordered by an Italian naval attache.

Technically the ships were only held in "protective custody" to prevent damage to them. President Roosevelt had nothing to say about their eventual disposition, but the law provides that any ship actually sabotaged be forfeited to the U. S.

Latins Follow Our Example.

Such ships, when reconditioned, might possibly be fed into the mass of shipping that is being turned over to Great Britain under the lease-lend act. But even if all the 300,000 tons seized in U. S. harbors were put into the British service they would last a bare five weeks at the present rate of sinking, according to official London statistics.

Latin American nations followed the U. S. move by taking 16 Axis-owned or controlled ships into custody, but they lost 13 which were burned or scuttled by their crews.

Peru, "as a safety' measure,' seized two Lufthansa transport planes and the German airline's hangars at Lima's Tambo airport.

U. S. immigration officials arrested 875 sailors from Italian and German ships to face deportation proceedings. Attorney - General Jackson ordered district attorneys to begin prosecution of those involved in actual sabotage. They face 20 years in prison and a $10,000 fine. A federal grand jury in Boston indicted the captain, four officers, and five crew members of the German tanker Pauline Friederich.

At Home

Bridges Up Again.

Two years ago Dean James Landis of the Harvard Law School heard enough evidence as presiding examiner, to convince him that Harry Bridges, alien CIO labor leader, was "energetically radical." However, he said evidence was insufficient to show Bridges was then a Commuist party member.

Since then the FBI has written a new 2,500-page report. Government prosecutors, in new proceedings at San Francisco, promised to show that the Australian leader of waterfront unions is or has been a member of three "subversive" groups—the Communist party, the Industrial Workers of the World and the Marine Workers' Industrial Union. Bridges' supporters called the efforts to deport Bridges "an attack on labor."

A Slice for Farmers.

President Roosevelt originally proposed in his budget that the farm bill be kept under $900,000,000. The House agreed, but farm leaders in the Senate, intent on a slice of 1941's whopping appropriations, persuaded the Appropriations Committee to raise the figure to $1,340,000,000. The farm bill thus became the largest in history. Funds for "parity payments" to raise farm receipts were boosted from $212,000,000 to $450,000,000.

Stop-Offs to Panama.

The general defense pact between the United States and Mexico, born March 5, has cut its first teeth. The two countries have signed a convention providing for reciprocal uses of air fields. Authorities stated that the pact would greatly strengthen the aerial defenses of the Panama Canal. United States planes, on due notice of flight and route to be taken, may stop over at any of the Mexican fields for 24 hours. Mexican planes were given the same privileges at United States fields.

FDR's Meditation.

The fishing was just fair, but President Roosevelt told a radio audience at the close of his week-long Gulf Stream cruise that he had had a lot of time for meditation and had become more certain than ever that "the time calls for courage and more courage—action and more action."

Back in Washington, FDR disclosed he had authorized production of $1,080,000,000 worth of supplies under the lease-end act.

Hair-Waving Treatment.

A socially-prominent Georgia matron was stricken while taking a beauty treatment in an Atlanta beauty shop. She died within a few minutes. A doctor making an autopsy reported that she had died of "acute hydrogen sulfide poisoning." He said that apparently poison was absorbed through the scalp during the treatment. She was ahving her hair waved by a heatless method which includes injection of a solution beneath a rubber cap fitted tightly about the scalp.

This Is Ohio

THE first man to introduce alfalfa east of the Mississippi was an Ohioan, Joseph Wing, known as the Alfalfa King.

While still a young man Wing left the old home farm, near Mechanicsburg in Champaign county, to go west, and while employed in Utah, he saw alfalfa growing for the first time. He perceived that it was one of the staple crops in that section of the country. He sent a quantity of seed to his father, who planted it, but the chickens running at large ate it off before it had a chance to mature.

The son returning home put an open barrel over a patch of it and soon it was growing out of the top of the barrel. Alfalfa is now one of Ohio's staple crops.

Abroad

Deadline Passed.

Midnight Monday was the reported deadline set by Germany for her nationals to leave Yugoslavia. Nazi sources said Germany then would deliver an ultimatum for Yugoslavia to demobilize or face invasion.

As the zero hour approached, Yugoslavia's new premier, General Dusan Simovic, told his countrymen to stand firm.

On Tuesday, after nothing happened, authorized German informants in Berlin acknowledged that they were unable to comment on political matters in Belgrade. It was the same Wednesday. Apparent efforts of Il Duce to mediate weren't received warmly in Belgrade.

A new obstacle to German domination of the Balkans loomed when Yugoslav officials announced that the government was seriously considering joining Soviet Russia and Turkey in a neutrality declaration.

Italians Hemmed In.

With each hour Italy's position in East African colonies became more precarious as the British imperial forces pressed for a knockout before May, when the rains come.

About 40,000 Italians who had survived the bloody battle for the Cheren passes in Eritrea were fighting with their backs to the Red Sea as the British swept past Asmara, the capital, to Massaua, Eritrea's only good port.

About 60,000 Italians, led by the Duke of Aosta, were said to be encircled in the region around Addis Ababa. Several British and native columns converged on that city. British columns driving up from the south slashed the Addis Ababa railway (the only one linking Addis Ababa with the sea) at Diredawa.

Visitor From Japan.

Yosuke Matsuoka, Japan's foreign minister, arrived in Berlin just in time to hear of the Yugoslav rebuff to the Axis, and arrived in Rome in time to hear of Italy's disastrous sea battle in the Mediterranean. There were broad hints that Germans and Italians were urging Japan to take drastic action in the Pacific.

Labor

CIO Tackles Ford.

The biggest single factory in the world—Ford's River Rouge plant, employing 86,000 men—which normally roars the clock around, sighed to a standstill as the CIO United Automobile Workers' Union took a big plunge.

The strike was the climax of four years of union effort to organize Ford workers.

Michael F. Widman, director of the union's Ford organizing drive, charged the company with "deliberate provocation" in order to force a showdown with the union before the NLRB can rule on the union's petition for a bargaining election.

Harry Bennett, Ford personnel director, said the strike was an attempt by a "Communist element to ruin our national defense effort." Informed sources said 1,500 small army trucks were the only defense items in production. The union offered to send back all workers needed for the defense jobs.

* * *

Out of Control.

Allis Chalmers strikers (also CIO-UAW) charged Secretary Knox and OPM Director Knudsen with conspiring to force a "so-called government sponsored" back-to-work movement. The Milwaukee concern holds large navy contracts. Governor Heil wired President Roosevelt violence was "out of control" and asked him to "direct such action as you deem available." The strike was referred to the new mediation board.

* * *

Miners Idle.

Spokesmen for operators of most of America's soft coal mines and CIO spokesmen were at loggerheads on the demands of John L. Lewis for a $1-a-day wage increase for 330,000 miners. As the zero hour approached Monday, operators said they hadn't agreed on a single point.

The deadline passed. Workers went out on strike despite an appeal from President Roosevelt for "uninterrupted operation." Shootings were reported in Kentucky fields as Washington froze soft coal prices to keep them from soaring because of the strike.

The Crawford County Humane society, through its president, Miss Mary Gardiner, has made its annual plea to parents and children asking that live chickens and ducks not be used as playthings at Easter time.

The society feels, Miss Gardiner said, "that the use of live creatures in inhumane. Too often they are left to starve and often are mistreated by children who do not know the proper way to handle them."

Request has been made that merchants refrain from selling live chickens for pets.

HOROSCOPE

For Sunday, April 6.

SUNDAY'S horoscope should hold testimony of some very exciting circumstances, possibly in relation to public, group or community enterprise, in which there may be definite friction, violence or some other unhappy occurrence. With proper restraints, rigid self-control and other measures for constructive and harmonious cooperation there might result satisfactory and practical gains. Be cautious with the tongue and pen.

Those whose birthday it is may have an exciting year with much stirring of an eventful and profitable nature providing there is not an attempt to force issues by reckless, passionate, intemperate and discordant measures.

For Monday, April 7.

Monday's astrological forecast is for a day of conflicting experiences and adverse conditions, but these are to be tempered by exceedingly pleasant and profitable events of a social, domestic, artistic or emotional character. Also there may be honors, favors or happy contacts with superiors and elders.

Those whose birthday it is may be expected to experience a year of conflicting and fluctuating fortunes, with some definite gains, stability and as well, honors, favors, solid support of those in influential places. These should be due to merit, sound ambitions, high principles as well as through social prestige and an urge for public benefit and advancement. There should be much personal and domestic felicity and activity of a pleasant social nature.

THEATERS

Shipboard Romance.

Taking place on a palatial liner plying between North and South America "The Lady Eve," opening today at the Ohio casts Barbara Stanwyck as a cardsharp and Henry Fonda as a young millionaire heading for home after a South American scientific expedition. When Fonda discovers the girl's true status he forgets about romance until he meets up with the same damsel in the guise of a Britisher some time later. Comedy situations abound with the stars abetted in their laugh-making scenes by Eugene Pallette, Luis Alberni and Eric Blore.

Scientific Murder.

Murder, scientificallly planned, is perpetrated by Basil Rathbone in a mystery-thriller, "The Mad Doctor," showing at the Madison. Incensed by the action of an unfaithful wife, Rathbone, in the title role, causes her death by the power of suggestion. His love-making to Ellen Drew, fiancee of John Howard, is ended when the latter in the role of a newspaperman decides to expose Rathbone and his plans. Frank Morgan and Barbara Allen (Vera Vague) supply the comedy touches. "The Monster and the Girl," with Paul Lukas, Ellen Drew and Phillip Terry contribute more thrills to the program.

King Gets Rental.

The first and only English monarch to receive this rental was the present King George VI when he visited Canada last year. Comedy of a stranded show girl is "Maisie Was a Lady" with Ann Sothern and Lew Ayres, the co-attraction.

Spring Byington plays the object of town gossip and Roy Rogers and Pauline Moore have the romantic leads. Gene Stratton-Porter's story "Her Father's Daughter," prompted the film "Her First Romance." Picture No. 2 with Edith Fellows.

GUEST ARTISTS GIVE MUSICAL PROGRAM

Americanism Discussed at Meeting of Jared Mansfield Chapter, D. A. R., Friday Evening at Women's Club.

PATRIOTISM was easily the outstanding theme of the meeting of the Jared Mansfield chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, when the group met at the Women's Club Friday evening. Hostesses for the occasion were Mrs. W. H. Gifford and Miss Edna Ward. The program was opened by devotions led by the chaplain, Mrs. John Shook after which a brief business session was held.

In honor of Mrs. Harry L. Ackerman the chapter presented the national D. A. R. museum with a stone churn of early Ohio pottery. Mrs. Anna Bloomfield, a former member, gave an early leather cartridge case which her grandfather carried while serving in the War of 1812.

Mrs. Dora McLeod was a guest present for the meeting.

Mrs. John H. Bristor, chairman of the music committee, arranged for the guest artists who participated in the program. Mrs. C. O. Anglin, accompanied at the piano by Miss Norma Jean Hammond, sang several selections. Her first number was "Ah, Love But a Day" by H. H A. Beach, and the others were "I Love You Truly" by Carrie Jacobs Bond, "American Lullaby" by Rich, and several clever nursery rhymes by Pearl Curran.

Mrs. Bristor gave an interesting paper on "Short Biographies of American Women Composers," after which she introduced another guest artist, Miss Thelma Reed, who has composed many selections. Miss Reed favored with four of her own pleasing numbers and "Etude de Concert" by Fay Foster.

Conference reports were given on the state meeting held in Cincinnati in March by the regent, Mrs. Stanley Richardson and Mrs. Ackerman. The next meeting of the chapter will be held May 2 at the Women's Club with Mrs. George Kochenderfer and Mrs. S. D. Hoover, hostesses at 7:30 o'clock.

Mrs. E. G. Corwin Gives Paper at Garden Meeting

Mrs. E. G. Corwin was the guest speaker Friday afternoon at the meeting of the Cottage Garden club when Mrs. George Smith, 825 Park avenue west, was hostess at her home. Mrs. Lyman Lantz was the associate hostess, entertaining 20 members and the one guest.

"Biblical Gardens" was the interesting topic of Mrs. Corwin's talk. During the business session announcement was made that the club would sponsor a new junior garden group to be organized soon. Concluding the program was informative talk on "Broad Leafed Evergreens" given by Mrs. A. C. Tuttle.

Luncheon was served to the group at 1 o'clock from a table attractive with spring flowers. Pussy willows and iris decorated the living room. Mrs. C. C. Blair and Mrs. J. B. Conard presided at the serving table.

The next meeting of the club will be held at the home of Mrs. Tolman Burns, 45 Linden road, on April 18 with Mrs. B. F. Hagelbarger as associate hostess.

Prayer opened the meeting and was given by Mrs. L. A. Palmer. The program was arranged by Mrs. Verna Waldhouse, chairman of Circle Two. Mrs. Della Richardson led the devotions followed by a discussion of the topic, "Investing Our Heritage In Christian Education." Mrs. Waldhouse introduced Mrs. John Shook and Mrs. Ellis Lincoln who spoke on "Pathfinding."

Candlelight and the glow from the burning logs in the fireplace were the only illumination. Clever programs in the appropriate colors were found at each place.

The ritual in memory of the Founders was given by Mrs Lloyd Brown and Miss Robison previous to the dinner. Later Mrs. Eugene Miller of Loudonville presided as toastmistress. Miss Neese read the Chi Omega Symphony and Mrs. Wayne Sutton, president, gave a short talk. Songs concluded the party.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

"OH! DICKY!" I exclaimed excitedly, "you mean Marion has told Mary in code how to find her?"

"Tie the optimism down, old girl," he advised kindly. "That's only a possibility, distinctly not even a probability. But we've got to reckon on thousand to one shots in this particular business, so, as I said before, you can't decide anything, nor can you tell Lillian anything until after you've seen Mary. Now suppose you settle back against that seat, and pull yourself together, so that you'll be able to get through your explanation to Helena about leaving so early, with 'an air of versimilitude.'"

That is an old and special jest between us, and I laughed appreciatively while I relaxed against the seat as he had advised. Dicky increased the speed of the car, and neither of us spoke again until we reached the Brixton door.

"I'll do the explaining to Sam about the garage," he said, keeping his voice muted as we saw Sam Brixton's rotund figure silhouetted in the suddenly opened door. "Do you go in and spoon the lentils to Helena?"

He was getting out of the car as he spoke, and the next second he was at my door, with hand extended to help me out.

"Don't be long!" I breathed imploringly, for I felt that I needed his facile invention and his laughing insouciance near me in my forthcoming interview.

"Right at your left elbow in two minutes," he said, and indeed, it was little more than that before he appeared in the living room, where I was answering Helena's solicitous inquiries about the car. I waited until he was close beside me before switching the topic of conversation.

"Helena, dear," I began deprecatingly. "I hope I shan't upset any dinner plans when I tell you I must take the eight o'clock train to New York."

Her reaction was just what I had expected.

"Go to New York, tonight?" she shrilled. "Why, Madge, are you crazy? You've only just arrived, and you've been driving all day. You simply mustn't go. Dicky, haven't you any authority over her?"

"Not unless I take a hickory stick to her," my husband said gravely, "and she'd be sure to hale me to court as a wife-beater, if I did that. But, she really has to go, folks. I was present when she received the message."

"Message, what message?" Helena repeated,—her reasoning powers evidently not functioning.

"There wasn't any message came here for you."

"No," I said, "I telephoned home while I was out—"

"Let me elucidate," Dicky struck in with a grin. "You know—or perhaps you don't,—that my spouse is what is popularly known as a 'telephone hound.' She carries at her masthead the slogan: 'When in doubt, reach for a telephone.'"

"But why use a stuffy public booth." Helena asked with hospitable fussiness, 'when we have branch phones all over the house to which you are so welcome?'"

"You don't know my wife very well or you wouldn't waste time asking a question like that," Dicky retorted. "She found that we had to wait five minutes or so while the garage attendant fixed up the car—there was nothing much the matter with it—and like a homing pigeon to its nest, she made for the nearest telephone. In any extra spare minute, she promptly reaches for the receiver. I shudder to think what will happen if they don't have telephones in Heaven when she goes through the pearly gates. St. Peter will have to get busy installing them if he knows what's good for him."

His nonsense had enabled me to get myself ready to cope with Helena. I turned to him with what I hoped would pass as a "withering look."

"If you've quite finished," I said, "I'll tell Helena what happened."

CHAPTER XVIII

"I feel that I owe you an apology," Joan said pleasantly. "I was so upset when you came to see me. I hope you understand." As she spoke her eyes took in the room There seemed to be nothing strange here either. It was a nicely decorated room, beige rugs, panelled walls and Venetian blinds.

"I know you'll excuse me," Mrs. Murdock explained, "but I'm frightfully busy. It was nice of you to come. I hope you'll be a regular customer."

Joan replied courteously and left feeling that her visit had been a failure. If Paul had expected her to find out anything about the Ritz Beauty Salon he would be disappointed.

Joan stopped at a drugstore for a sandwich and a cup of coffee. It was all the dinner she would have time for tonight. She was sitting at the counter staring into the bread mirror behind the fountain when she saw Pat Hines come in. Joan turned and called to her. "Oh, Miss Hines!"

The girl did not reply. "Pat!" Joan said.

The girl smiled then and came towards here. "Oh, Miss Leland I'm glad to see you. I thought I'd have a cup of coffee here. I have to the club. I'm too early as to eat. This is my first night, you know."

As Joan watched Pat sip her coffee, she had an idea. Perhaps she should have asked Paul first but there was no time for that so on the strength of her impulse she said. "Where are you staying?"

Pat smiled. "At the Y. W. C. A. I didn't have much money."

"How would you like to share my apartment?"

"Oh, I'd love to! And," she added childishly, "I'll have plenty of money now. Mr. Miller is paying me $50 a week."

"Yes, I know." Joan said, thinking how furious Karl would be when he found out that his new discovery was living with his secretary. But this arrangement might permit Joan to keep an eye on Patricia. Perhaps she could warn her against becoming too involved with Karl.

Paul did not make an appearance for two days during which time Pat was installed in Joan's apartment. Joan's heart ached to see her in Sybil's place, yet the girl would be a comfort to her. It would take her mind off her own troubles.

It was almost 1 o'clock in the morning when Pat and Joan arrived at the apartment. Karl had driven them from the club. He made no comment upon the arrangement, though Joan could see that he was not pleased.

"Karl," Pat confided later, "is the most wonderful man I've ever met. He's different from other men. There's something about him . . ."

"Don't you think he's a little old for you?" Joan asked, remembering that Sybil once had said the same thing to her.

"Old?" Pat's delicate eyebrows shot up. "Oh, older men are so much more interesting. Don't you think so?"

Joan sighed. What could she do to save this girl? She was sure that Pat Hines had never sung in a night club before. She was not a professional and sooner or later she would find herself involved too deeply to get out. But what could Joan say without telling her the truth?

When the doorbell rang both girls were in bed. Joan switched on the light and, fastening a robe about her, went into the living room calling, "Who's there?"

"It's Paul. "Let me in, Joan! Quick."

Joan unlocked the door. Paul stormed in and demanded, "Where is she?"

But Pat had already risen and was standing dressed in the bedroom door. When she saw Paul, she gave a little cry. "Paul!" and the color drained from her face.

* * *

Paul looked angry. "What in the world are you doing here, Pat?"

The three of them stood in the living room staring at one another. Joan switched on the lights, revealing the strain on each face.

"What is it, Paul?" she asked.

"Pat happens to be my sister."

"But she told me her name was Hines!" Joan cried. "She said she lived in Los Angeles."

Paul laughed shortly. "Her name is Patricia O'Malley and she's from Brooklyn, New York. How she ever got to California I wouldn't know. She's seventeen and she has never sung in a night club or anywhere else in public in her life."

Pat took his arm and looked pleadingly into his face. "Oh Paul, I've always wanted to sing. I wanted to have an exciting life, something different! I ran away from home, but I wrote to mother last night and told her that I was safe and had a good job. And now that you're in San Francisco she won't worry about me." She paused and looked from Paul to Joan. "By the way, what are you doing here? I thought you were in Washington working for the government."

Paul's face was serious. "I am not working for the government any longer," he said, with a warning glance at Joan. "I am Karl Miller's manager."

"Why, Paul O'Malley!"

As Joan and Paul exchanged glances, she realized that Pat must be told something about this strange situation.

Paul was speaking nervously. "Listen carefully, Pat! You know when I worked for the government, there were a lot of people who had reason to dislike me."

Pat's brown eyes, so like her brothers, widened, as she asked, "Well?"

"So I'm using another name. I am known here as Paul Sherman."

Pat shrugged. "You're a fine one to scold me," she said crossly.

"Go to bed," Paul ordered. "I want to talk to Joan."

* * *

Reluctantly Patricia obeyed, closing the bedroom door behind her. Obviously she had no idea of the havoc her appearance had caused.

Paul spoke in a low, distressed voice. "This is a fine mess."

"Can't you make her go home?"

"She wouldn't do it. We O'Malleys are like that. Besides, she'd tell Karl and the whole game would be up. My job has to come first. This business is more important—even than my own sister."

Joan put a gentle hand upon his arm. "I know how you feel," she comforted. "But since Pat is living with me, I may be able to protect her."

"We must get this business finished up quickly—before Karl has a chance to pull anything."

"Then we won't tell Pat anything?"

"No! And tomorrow I want you to make it plain that she is not to reveal my identity. She must understand that it is very necessary for me to use another name."

Joan was more convinced than ever of Karl's power by the many complications which seemed to be closing in about them.

"I'm afraid, Paul! This can't end . . . except with more trouble."

"You're right, Joan. We've got to be very careful, but I think the whole thing's going to blow up soon. So be on your guard."

"Do you know anything?" Joan pleaded.

"Can't say yet," Paul said abruptly.

Two weeks passed. Fearful weeks of watching and waiting for Joan and Paul. Happy weeks for Pat who bloomed under the influence of her romance with Karl Miller. A romance which it seemed impossible to stop. Pat would not listen to anything against Karl. She sang his praises day and night, yet so far as Joan could discover Karl had not used her services in connection with the spy ring. And Pat had accepted their explanation about her brother's identity and promised not to reveal it, even to Karl.

* * *

Joan dared not think about her own sister. But as the days passed and no further evidence was gained, a terrible fear loomed over her. Perhaps Karl had done away with Sybil after all. Even Paul's assurances were of small comfort now. She remembered with longing the calm days when she had worked in the office of Arthur Mulford, the importer. She had changed a great deal since that time. The mad infatuation for Karl was quite dead. Seeing him smiling at Pat, looking at her with the same tenderness he had once given Joan, made her tremble with revulsion. Joan was only three years older than Paul's sister but she felt twenty years her senior. Pat seemed like her own ghost. She wondered if Karl murmured "liebchen" to Pat. She wondered if he told her that she was beautiful and exciting; but there was no jealousy in her. She pitied the other girl because she knew that eventually she must suffer the same bitter disillusionment.

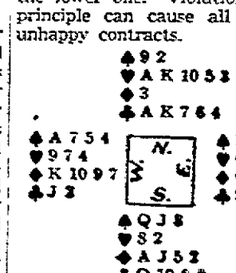
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

SHOWING EQUAL LENGTH

With all fine players the showing of two suits in "regular order," with the higher one bid first, followed later by a rebid of the higher one, indicates that it is at least one card longer than the other. In order to show that both are rebiddable, at least five cards in length, it is necessary to rebid the lower one. Violation of this principle can cause all sorts of unhappy contracts.



(Dealer: North. North-South vulnerable.)

North	East	South	West
1 ♥	Pass	1 NT	Pass
2 ♣	Pas.	2 NT	Pass
3 ♥	Pass	3 NT

Against that contract, West led his diamond 10, preferring to keep his spade A as a side entry. East put on the Q and South the A, after a bit of study. He could count five tricks in clubs, that first one in diamonds, and decided to seek three in hearts by finessing the 10 at once, in the hope of finding both Q and J with West. When that failed, East returned the diamond 4 to the 7. West switched to his spade 4 to East's K, and the diamond 6 was won by the 9. West followed with the diamond K, setting the contract, and the spade A set it another.

After the debacle South told North that if he had rebid the clubs, thereby showing two five-card suits, South would have supported the clubs to four, whereupon North would have gone to 5-Clubs. At that contract two spade tricks could be lost, but no more, whereas South had no chance to make his No Trump game as the cards lay. From the bidding, he thought North had only a four-card club suit, with five hearts, so reckoned that the No Trump venture should be the better try.

* * *

Your Week-End Lesson.

Why should a declarer, who is embarking on a cross-ruff of two suits, first cash any top honors in the third side suit? Can you set up a hand giving an example of what may happen to him if he doesn't do that?

FOR EASTER!

Sport Podge

by REX HESS

"Why don't you," they asked, "get up early some morning and come out and watch us practice?"

They were some of the members of the high school football squad, and they don't need to look far for the answer:

"Early some morning!"

THEY should KNOW BETTER!

* * *

There'll be no scouts around to watch the Tyger gridmen in their spring drills. You may be sure of that.

Seven-thirty in the a. m. is too early in the day for scouts and sport writers to be braving the blustering winds, or exposing their optics to the glare of morning sunshine.

"That's breakfast time at my house, and I wouldn't miss it, or move out of the hay a minute earlier to move it up.

* * *

Cut short my sleep to watch a grid drill? That AIN'T hay, brother! The scouts will do what I will do: wait for those afternoon practice games.

* * *

"Some of the boys work after school and they want to keep their jobs and still not miss practice. Morning drills suited them fine, and they're okay with me. We get more done that we should in the afternoon.

"The boys report at 7 o'clock to get into their football togs, start practice at 7:30, and get in two hours work, one hour before school and one hour in first period gym class."

They must really want to play football.

* * *

"That's nothing," said Pop Elias. "I came out here at 4 o'clock this morning to clean up the equipment room."

That man, I tell you, must not have a clear conscience.

Now me, I can sleep. But sound! With and ly.

* * *

Yes sir, boys, you have my number
When you're aiming at my slumber.

* * *

Coach Al Fendrick has another new grid wrinkle out at Madison: posts set just far enough apart to allow the boys fighting room in between.

Then comes charging and blocking practice between the posts. The boys have to stay in there and dig, dig, dig. They can't slide around their opponents or they'd crash into the posts.

"That idea I like," said Tyger Tutor Snyder. "I think I'll go and set me up some posts."

Pittsburgh Quint Rolls Into Fourth Place.

ST. PAUL —(INS)— The Westinghouse A. A. team from Pittsburgh today was elevated to fourth place in the five-man standings of the American Bowling Congress tournament.

* * *

The Pittsburgh outfit rolled into fourth with a score of 2,693 after midnight last night. Their games were 1,008, 1,011 and 949.

* * *

Philadelphia, Cleveland and Chicago teams will be in action tonight. One of the Philadelphia bowlers is Jim Murgie, who shot three successive 300 games four years ago.

Judge John L. Rounds of St. Paul was named president of the congress yesterday, succeeding Neil King of Indianapolis. Buffalo, N. Y., was selected for the 1943 tournament, Columbus, O., having previously been chosen for 1942.

It was also decided to use an "electric eye" for detecting fouls, providing the device which has been recommended for this purpose proves satisfactory.

COACH PICKED

PORTSMOUTH — (U.P.) — The school board's athletic committee today recommended Willard E. Ellsesser for the job of head football coach at Portsmouth high school to succeed Paul Jenkins who resigned to take a similar post at Male high school, Louisville, Ky.

DERRINGER RETURNS

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. —(INS)— Paul Derringer was slated to join the World Champion Cincinnati Reds today as they tangled with the Boston Red Sox in another "coming north" tilt. Derringer has worked out with the Birmingham Barons for 10 days and is ready to hurl.

Baer Drops From Fistic Picture

Escapes 'Bum-of-Month' Club by Nova Beating.

By HARRY FERGUSON

NEW YORK—(U.P.)—It will be an awful loss to the gaiety of nations, but it looks like we have seen the last of Maxie Baer.

* * *

He staggered to his corner after two minutes and 18 seconds of the eighth round last night, left eye puffed shut, lips gashed and crimson trickling from his nose.

* * *

Lou Nova, the man who was on the brink of the grave from blood poisoning a little over a year ago, had given Maxie an artistic going over and had won on a technical knockout.

Nova's victory and Billy Conn's triumph over Gunnar Barlund in Chicago last evening left the heavyweight situation in a muddle. The original plan had been for Champion Joe Louis to have a return bout with Abe Simon here on May 9. Conn was to get a chance at the heavyweight title in June and Nova a shot at it in September. But today Promoter Mike Jacobs said there would be a shift in the plans. He declined to say what it would be. Jacobs said he was greatly impressed by the performance Nova staged last night.

One man definitely out of the picture is Baer. Maybe he won't retire, but he should. He refused to commit himself about quitting the ring after they led him into his dressing room with his senses reeling from two right-hand jolts that sent him to the floor in the eighth round. But Ancil Hoffman, his manager, took one look at Maxie's face and said significantly: "A man can't go on forever."

Maybe not, but for a few heart-stopping seconds in the fourth round it seemed that Baer was about to turn one of those amazing tricks that have made him a drawing card for 12 years.

* * *

He looped three long rights to Nova's jaw, and Lou's knees almost folded. A look of bewilderment came over Baer's face as Nova, instead of reeling into the resin, dove in and jabbed him on the eye.

* * *

* * *

Until the time Nova closed Baer's left eye it had been a good show. Maxie fought his usual fight, clowning for two minutes of each round, grimacing at Nova, beckoning him to come in and fight, and then putting on a flurry of punching for the other minute of the round.

* * *

The customers—there were 22,114 of them and they paid $95,544.17—loved it all the way. If this is the end of Maxie, he left them with a smile, for after Donovan stopped the fight Baer rushed across the ring and tried to throw another punch at Nova over the referee's shoulder.

Wood Retains Three-Stroke Lead In Masters' Tourney

AUGUSTA, Ga. —(U.P.)— A majority of the winners in the past seven masters golf championships have come from behind at the half-way mark to snatch the title and two of the best stretch runners in the game are just far enough off the pace today to beat Craig Wood under the wire.

* * *

Wood, who hopes to live down his reputation as the "great runnerup," held a three stroke lead over his nearest challenger when the third round started today. His second straight subpar round, a one-under 71, added to his scintillating first round 66, gave him a 36-hole total of 137.

* * *

In the best position to give Craig a run down the stretch are professional champion Byron Nelson and open champion Lawson Little. Both picked up ground yesterday and they have the heart and the equipment to push wood all the way.

Nelson was three under par with 69 yesterday.

* * *

Fourth choice in the betting now is Ben Hogan who is six strokes off the pace along with five others at 143. The other 143-shooters were Willie Goggin, Clayton Heafner and Sam Byrd, former New York Yankee outfielder. Sam Snead, pretournament favorite, is virtually out of it with 148.

* * *

At least one question, and the one asked most here: "What are Bobby Jones' chances?" has been settled. Making his only tournament appearance in the masters each year, Jones has carded 76-74—160, which leaves him tied for 26th place.

BOWLING SCORES

Bob Frary paced the Ohio Brass league last night with 183-231-170—584, and General Office grabbed team honors with 823-902-864.

League Studies Revised Code

Storck Quits as Grid Prexy In New Set-up.

CHICAGO —(U.P.)— National football league club owners opened their second day of debate on a new constitution today, hoping to settle on a permanent code agreeable both to owners and Commissioner Elmer F. Layden.

* * *

Resignation of President Carl Storck of Dayton, Ohio, in the midst of yesterday's meetings threw all established procedure to the winds.

* * *

In addition to determining just what powers will be granted to Layden, the 10 owners must decide today whether a successor to Storck will be named or the office of president abolished. Storck resigned "for the best interests of the league," ending a 20 year connection with the organization when a fight for power developed after Layden was appointed commissioner.

When the owners have agreed on a constitution, Layden will examine it thoroughly. If the revised code is acceptable to him, he will be inducted immediately as the first pro football commissioner in history. His annual salary for five years is $20,000.

Indications were that Storck's office would be filled rather than have Layden serve both as commissioner and president. No possible candidates were mentioned.

CHICAGO SWIMMERS THREATEN WOLVES

ANN ARBOR, Mich. — (U.P.) — University of Michigan's long domination of the nation's swimming pools was slipping today.

Undermining Michigan's chances to retain its national A. A. U., title and hang it alongside western conference and national collegiate championships, was the powerful Towers club of Chicago which led the Wolverines, 22-18, at the half-way mark.

Earl Clark of Ohio State successfully started his campaign to take both diving titles left vacant by his former team mate, Al Patnik. He won the low-board event with 150.31 points.

Peck Picks His Top 3 Moundsmen

KNOXVILLE, Tenn.—(AP)—Bob Feller, Al Milnar and Jim Bagby—in that order—will be Cleveland Indians' hurlers in the first three games of the regular season, if Manager Roger Peckinpaugh's present plans work out.

The Indians are here for games with Knoxville today and tomorrow, after rain washed out the scheduled contest with the Giants at Anderson, S. C., yesterday.

* * *

Peckinpaugh disclosed he plans to start Feller Monday at Johnson City, Tenn., against the Giants, work him again next Friday in Richmond, Va., and then let him rest up for the season opener April 15 in Cleveland, against the Chicago White Sox.

* * *

Southpaw Al Milnar is scheduled to pitch the second game of the regular season after assignments against the Giants next Tuesday at Pulaski, Va., and next Saturday at the Polo Grounds.

Werber Keeps Lead-Off Job

McKechnie Hesitates on Second In Order.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala.—(U.P.)—The Cincinnati Reds and their spring traveling companions, the Boston Red Sox, squared off today for the 10th of their 16-game exhibition series, having been rained out at Gadsden, Ala., yesterday.

* * *

Bucky Walters and Whitey Moore were to share the pitching assignment for the Reds with Herb Hash and Charley Wagner handling the mound duties for the Sox.

* * *

The two squads went to Gadsden—75 miles from here—by bus yesterday only to find the field partly flooded by heavy rains. If the rain lets up the Reds and the Sox will hold forth here today and Sunday.

Manager Bill McKechnie had decided definitely to keep Third Baseman Bill Werber in the lead-off batting spot for the Reds. He wasn't so sure of the second man, but indicated it would be either Lonnie Frey or Mike McCormick.

McKechnie acknowledged that McCormick's hitting has been none too heavy during the spring training, but that failed to worry him. He noted that the center fielder never has been at his best during the spring, but felt sure he could be counted upon to deliver when the serious competition begins.

The Reds are expecting the arrival of big Paul Derringer from Tampa, Fla., within a day or so and are hopeful that all ill effects of his recent groin injury will have disappeared.

Barlund Quits In Conn Bout

Chicago Sees Poorest Fight In Years.

By H. C. WARREN

CHICAGO —(INS)— Approximately 15,000 spectators who paid $31,201 to see Billy Conn of Pittsburgh fight Gunnar Barlund of Finland were of the opinion today that if Conn is the No. 1 contender for Joe Louis' title, the Negro champion's crown is safe for a long time to come.

* * *

Conn was credited last night at the Chicago stadium with scoring a technical knockout in the eighth round, when Paul Damski, Barlund's manager, refused to let the Finn continue.

* * *

Dr. Frank A. Lagorio, physician for the Illinois Boxing commission, told Barlund and his manager that the Finn could go on, but Damski decided to call it a night.

As a result of the refusal to continue the fight, Chairman Sheldon Clark of the state boxing commission held up Barlund's purse pending an investigation. Conn collected $8,400 as his purse.

Referee Barney backed up Damski's decision. Ross said he would have stopped the bout himself and awarded it to Conn, had Barlund attempted to continue. Damski said Barlund's eyes were in bad shape and "I didn't want to have anything on my conscience."

Dr. Lagorio took three stitches in a cut over Barlund's right eye.

The Conn-Barlund fight was one of the poorest staged in Chicago in recent years, and the crowd voiced its sentiments by keeping up an almost constant chant of derision.

* * *

The two gave a reasonable facsimile of fighting in the first round, but after that it resembled a mediocre wrestling match.

* * *

More than 220,000 women bought fishing licenses in the United States in the 1939-1940 season. This was an increase of 300 per cent over the previous year, but by no means includes all the women anglers, as not all states keep separate statistics of men and women licensees.

An eyeless animal, the oyster, is endowed with a strange responsiveness to light and shade. As long as the light strikes it, the oyster lies with opened shell and sucks in food from the water. But when a shadow is cast athwart it, the oyster closes its shell and remains hermetically armored until the shadow passes.

A vitally important declaration of policy by the Yugoslav government was expected soon.

While the government struggled to "stall for time," Yugoslav military authorities rushed the final stages of mobilization to completion, suspended all commercial traffic on Yugoslav railroads and along her stretch of the Danube river and commandeered trains and river boats.

Simultaneously strong German forces were reported taking up positions along Yugoslavia's borders.

The Italian newspaper Messagero told its readers that the Belgrade government is in an "impossible position" and added Yugoslavia "must not make the mistake of confusing tolerance for weakness."

Informed Rome circles expressed belief the Yougoslav crisis is rapidly approaching the explosion point.

Berlin announced that a German warship operating overseas sank the British auxiliary cruiser Voltaire, a vessel of 13,245 tons, and also the British transport vessel Britannia, 8,799 tons.

The German high command said combined German and Italian forces occupied Bengasi in Libya yesterday and that the British North African forces were retreating "further north."

London announced that the toll of Italian destroyers lost in the Red Sea mounted to eight today when three were put out of commission by British bombers while attempting to leave the Eritrean port of Massawa.

British Pincers Close In on Massawa

KHARTOUM, Anglo-Egyptian Sudan—(AP)—The Imperial British army's pincers closed tighter today around Massawa, Italy's Red Sea port in Eritrea, while other columns crossed the Ethiopian frontier from the northeast and closed in on Adigrat.

Adigrat is 40 miles east of Adowa and the place where the Italians won their first victory in the invasion of 1935. It is about 80 miles south of Asmara, captured capital of Eritrea.

(A Reuters — British news agency—dispatch to London said Adowa had been occupied.)

Italians were streaming south by the main roads south of Asmara toward Addis Ababa, but occasionally halted in attempts to ambush the pursuing forces.

See Iraq Coup As Gain for Axis

LONDON—(U.P.)—Great Britain intends to withhold recognition of the new Iraq government in the belief that a coup de'etat has been engineered with Axis encouragement, it was understood today.

The coup which put out of office a government regarded as friendly to Great Britain was seen here as another setback, immediately following the fall of Benghazi.

(Iraq is in a peculiarly important position in the middle east bordering as it does on Turkey.)

The Exchange Telegraph in a Bagdad dispatch reported that Rashid Ali Al-Gailani, ousted as premier two months ago had reassumed the prime ministry of a "national defense" government after the coup which unseated the Taha El Hasimi cabinet and deposed Prince Abdul Ilan, uncle of five-year-old King Feisal II, as regent.

German's List High March Shipping Toll

BERLIN—(U.P.)—A high command communique asserted today that Germany had sunk more than 718,000 tons of shipping during March.

in his seat. During the daylight hours, he advised his colleague, Dr. Daniel P. Quiring, of Cleveland, ways of administering to the injured despite the absence of first aid materials, but when night came he seemed to grow delirious.

While the rescuers were taking him out of the fuselage, he was saying "I am Dr. George Crile, and I want a warm bath."

Mrs. Crile was greatly concerned for her new spring hat, which fell into the water and was soaked. Mrs. Allen confessed that she spent considerable of the 15 hours she was marooned in the water, lamenting the fate of her new dress.

All day and all night, Captain O'Brien was in the wrecked pilot's compartment, too seriously injured to be moved. For the most part he asserted his authority as master, cheering and directing his passengers, but he had long interludes of delirium during which he refought over and over the battle with the elements which ended with the accident.

But when the rescuers arrived, O'Brien was master of himself as well as of the situation. Though the most seriously injured, he wouldn't permit himself to be moved until all the others were taken out.

Allis-Chalmers Group Meets with Board

WASHINGTON — (U.P.) — Allis-Chalmers labor and management representatives met with the defense mediation board today in the attempt to settle the 73-day-old strike.

Authoritative labor officials said the board would strive to reach an agreement by Monday to reopen the strike-bound Milwaukee plant. If it doesn't, they said, the case would be referred to President Roosevelt for whatever action he deems necessary.

This procedure reportedly was agreed upon late yesterday at a meeting between Mr. Roosvelt and the cabinet.

If the case is sent to the White House, one official said, "we have assurances that action would not be long delayed."

Steel Strike Plans Reported; Meet Called

PITTSBURGH — (U.P.) — Steel workers organizine committee leaders in plants of United States Steel Corp, were scheduled to meet here today amid unconfirmed reports that the steel union may strike Tuesday night to back up demands for a new wage contract.

With constant negotiations between the SWOC and Carnegie-Illinois Steel Corp., U. S. Steel's largest operating subsidiary, apparently stymied, reports of possible strike action was heard.

Gayda Says Social War Threatens U. S.

ROME —(AP)— Virginio Gayda, Fascist editorial spokesman, said today American aid to Britain threatened to start a social war in the United States, and said the evidence was in the present wave of strikes.

Not only are the strikers disrupting the flow of war supplies to Britain, but also, since they are "caused, as is known, by a request for increase of wages," they threaten to upset American economy and hamper post-war trade expansion, Gayda declared in Il Giornale D'Italia.

"These strikes are all creating conflicts which arise from social, political and moral reasons, and are opening up a national crisis which may develop still more dangerously with the entrance of racial reasons," the Fascist writer continued.

"In one city one has already seen Negroes against whites. Intervening to assure peace in the world, American war-mongering threatens to ignite the powers of war within its own territory.

"These strikes are also disorganizing war production, delaying deliveries ever more urgently awaited in England and other theaters."
